The Aim

It doesn't matter what you call it – 'occupational health and safety', 'risk management', 'workplace safety', or any number of other terms that come and go. The point is; it's good for your business if people are not injured in the workplace. Why, then, is this so difficult to achieve?

At QBE we feel that the problem often lies in a lack of clear information and an uncoordinated approach to OHS and workers compensation in the workplace. To deal with this problem we offer:

- Timely advice.
- System audits.
- On-site assistance.

Even on seemingly small matters, early advice and intervention by one of our consultants can help prevent escalation of costs and assist in the development of tailored solutions for your business

The Essentials

Advice

We offer expert advice on OHS – direct by telephone or have a QBE OHS Risk Management Consultant come to your workplace. Our OHS Risk Management Consultants are all experienced and qualified to advise on workplace safety issues. They are able to explain it in terms that make sense and can be immediately applied, allowing you to make an informed decision.

System Audits

To really get to the core of your business we can conduct a full audit of your OHS policies, programs and procedures. On completion of the audit, we will provide you a detailed report with our recommendations regarding your compliance requirements and how to develop prevention strategies.

As part of the audit we verify that the documented OHS practices and strategies are being implemented and are working, and your management and staff are observing these processes. On a smaller scale, we can audit a section of the business, depending on where the need is greater. An audit allows you to gain an overview of OHS issues in the workplace, forming the basis of an integrated plan for moving forward.

On-Site Assistance

You may find that concerted action is needed to deal with safety issues at your workplace. If so, we can help in many ways to provide solutions for your business:

Workplace inspection. This involves an OHS Risk Management Consultant coming to your workplace and, through observation and discussion, identifying unsafe acts or conditions. Our report will include recommendations for improvement. These may include specific risk assessments, education and training or documentation of systems and procedures.

Information and training. QBE, more than anyone, understands the need for consistency. All of our courses are nationally consistent in structure and content (a major benefit for multi-state employers) but flexible enough to be tailored to your business and local conditions.

We offer a full range of training services, for all levels. For a complete guide to QBE national training program, visit our website www.qbe.com.au.

The Deliverables

Saving You Time and Money

These services deliver important benefits to your business. With a choice based on need, you spend no more or less on workplace safety than is required. If minimal intervention is enough then you need only seek advice, but if a more integrated approach is needed to avoid major cost blowouts we can provide a full range of services. Gaining help from our experts on your workplace means not having to 'stumble in the dark' with this complex area of regulation and legislation. We understand the intricacies of workplace safety and how these play out in daily practice. QBE has national coverage via our extensive Branch network with expertise available in all State jurisdictions.

Our OHS Risk Management consultancy services need not be taken in order or at the same time. You may need all of them over several years, or just one of them right now, depending on your business's situation. The point is that one of the best things you can do for your business is to take control of your OHS and workers compensation situation. We have the expertise to help you get it done.

We recommend using the OHS Risk Management Essentials in combination with each other to achieve maximum impact. If you would like to know more about these Essentials talk to your QBE Account Manager or visit our website at www.qbe.com.au
